

Economics News

July/August

Sam Allgood presented a paper titled, “The Collective Household, Household Production, and Efficiency of Marginal Reforms” at the 2007 meeting of the Association of Public Economic theory at Vanderbilt University.

Roger Butters will be working with high school teachers and students at a week-long seminar hosted by the F.A. Hayek Foundation in Bratislava, Slovakia in August. He will also be working with high school teachers and students at a week-long seminar hosted by the Junior Achievement, Hungary in Budapest, Hungary in August.

Rick Edwards is in Namibia and South Africa as part of a small group organized by the Grassland Foundation and the World Wildlife Fund to study privately-owned, for-profit nature reserves, that is, places that harness the marketplace to make money for landowners through wildlife conservation.

This summer, Craig Macphee is advising on trade policy reforms and leading a seminar on modeling trade and tax policies in Mongolia.